Ford addresses inherited Cabinet, asks they remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford met for the first time today with his inherited Cabinet to ask that each member stay on the job, at least for the present.

Ford sat midway down the long table between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. Directly across him was an empty chair, symbolizing the vacant vice presidency.

Making small talk before launching the formal session, Ford inquired of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz whether the rains that hit the Washington area Friday had been nationwide and might have helped ease the Midwest drought.

Butz told him that the rains were regional.

Ford, acting to steady the ship of state a day after his elevation to the helm, requested the National Security Council to meet with him immediately following the Cabinet session.

He already had asked the government's top officials to stay at his side during the transition period, and was ready to enunciate again that request today as he resumed a whirlwind personal pace of conferences and meetings that began even before he took the oath of office.

In that ceremony on Friday, Ford formally became the only president never to have faced a national election, succeeding the only president ever to resign — a man driven from office by scandals that shattered his Republican administration.

After pronouncing an end to "our long national nightmare," Ford set about in accomplishing a transition that his aides said he wanted to be positive, swift and sure.

Between the time he was sworn in and his late evening return to his suburban Virginia home — the Fords won't move into the White House until some time next week — there were these developments:

—The President said through a spokesman that he considers the selection of a new vice president to succeed himself to be of top priority, with the goal of announcing his choice within a week or ten days.

—Ford met with ambassadors from 57 nations whom he called to the White House to assure them that U.S. foreign policy remains basically unchanged. With Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at his side, he told one group of ambassadors, "I'll rely on Henry for all the tough international negotiations."

—The new chief executive told his economic advisers that controlling inflation would be the "high and first priority" on his administration's domestic agenda. The advisers he conferred with were holdovers from Nixon's administration, and a spokesman said they could continue to serve Ford during the transition.

—Congress overwhelmingly voted Ford a pledge of cooperation and assurance of "fervent hopes for success" in the presidency. The Senate approved the resolution on a unanimous voice vote and the House then passed it 328 to 0.

—Ford named a quartet of friends to advise him on restructuring the White House staff. The four — former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, NATO ambassador Donald M. Rumsfeld, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton and former Rep. John O. Marsh Jr. of Virginia — all had served with Ford in the House.

—In his initial personnel announcements, Ford named veteran Washington newsman Jerald F. terHorst to be his press secretary and Robert T. Hartmann, chief of his vice presidential staff, to be a White House counselor.

As Ford was establishing his imprint on White House operations, Nixon was flying home to California in the same jetliner he had used on triumphant journeys as America's chief executive.

Nixon's letter of resignation was delivered to the secretary of state at 11:35 a.m. EDT, saying simply: "I hereby resign the office of President of the United States."

By the time Nixon reached his San Clemente estate, the White House was nearly bare of reminders of his presidency.

In the Oval Office Nixon's collection of porcelain birds and family pictures were gone from the bookshelves. On the walls of the corridors nearby, color photographs which traced Nixon's personal triumphs at home and abroad were removed and replaced by another set of photographs — this one showing Ford performing his official duties as vice president or House Republican leader.

As Ford was pledging a "thorough and responsible" search for a new vice president, Republican senators were debating the credentials of a leading contender, former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Some Republican conservatives mobilized opposition to Rockefeller's nomination but a long-time Ford friend, Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., said "It's too early" to speculate seriously about whom Ford will choose.

The selection will be subject to congressional approval, repeating the constitutional process that made Ford vice president eight months ago.

Ford takes action against inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's economic advisers are under orders from President Ford to outline actions he can take to deal with inflation, which they now say will be worse this year than they had predicted.

The news that inflation would not decline in the last half of 1974 by as much as previously believed was the message Ford received from the circle of economic advisers on his first day as president.

It was at that meeting Friday afternoon in the White House that Ford said inflation would be a "high and first priority" of his administration. He called for the outlines of the various actions he could take to combat inflation and scheduled another session with the economists next week.

Ford believed inflation to be the world's greatest problem, and many believe the current rate of 11 per cent a year in this country is the major concern of the electorate.

Kenneth L. Rush, a special presidential adviser on the economy, said in a telephone interview that not only will inflation be somewhat worse than thought, but the nation's economic output will probably show a small decline in 1974. A small increase had been predicted earlier.

Rush said the rate of inflation will probably be between 7 and 8 per cent by the end of the year, "and probably nearer to eight than seven."

He said there is some feeling the rate may be above 8 per cent. So far this year inflation has been above 11 per cent, but administration economists had been predicting this would decline to a rate of about 7 per cent by year's end.

Rush said Ford made clear he "wants action and wants it soon."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who also attended the meeting, agreed with Rush in a separate telephone interview. "The inflation forecast is a little worse than our original forecast," Simon said.

Rush said causes of the worsening economic outlook include the drought in the Midwest farm belt which has lowered the crop production outlook. Wholesale farm prices increased 7.8 per cent in July.

Besides Rush and Simon, others at Friday's meeting were Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, Herbert Stein and Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers, Budget Director Roy L. Ash, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William E. Scranton.

Right number wrong area

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — Hundreds of callers to the White House have misdialed and reached instead the white telephone in Roland and Mona Booker's kitchen.

The Bookers' phone number is the same as the White House number except for the area code, which is different by one digit. Connecticut's area code is 203, Washington's 202.

Rumors of President Nixon's resignation brought such a flood of wrong numbers at the Booker home in this small eastern Connecticut city that the family took the phone off the hook Wednesday night, Mrs. Booker said.

Thursday, 66 persons called to support Nixon before he announced he planned to resign and 26 telephoned on Friday, said 14-year-old Ivy Booker.

Pope sends telegram

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI sent best wishes and blessings today to President Ford and "all the beloved American people."

"As you accede to the presidency of the United States of America, we assure you of our prayerful good wishes and we gladly invoke upon you and all the beloved American people an abundance of guiding and strengthening blessings," said the text of the telegram released by the Vatican.

Focus on Rockefeller for Vice-President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, the focus of early speculation over President Ford's choice for vice president, has won the support of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

Meanwhile, two Southern senators indicated on Friday that conservative opposition to the 66-year-old Rockefeller has faded.

However, associates of Ford say serious efforts to tap a new vice president won't start until next week. The view of top Republicans throughout the country will be sought, they said. Scott called Rockefeller "my

No. 1 choice for just about everything for a long time."

Rockefeller, saying he had not spoken with Ford about the vice presidency, told newsmen it would "be totally unfair to comment on the possibility" of being selected.

However, Ford associates are believed divided on Rockefeller with no clear public or private indication yet on who the new President prefers.

"It's too early" for serious speculation, Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., said.

From the conservative wing of the GOP, there was talk of blocking Rockefeller and pushing Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan mentioned the Arizona senator, while Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., circulated a fact sheet boosting the 1964 GOP presidential nominee.

Aides to Helms made clear the North Carolina senator was trying to organize conservative efforts to block Rockefeller.

But Sens. John G. Tower, R-Tex., and Bill Brock, R-Tenn., said conservative opposition to Rockefeller has faded. Even Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., had some kind words for Rockefeller though he said he wasn't his "first choice."

Thurmond, in fact, sent the new President a letter citing Goldwater, Brock and Tower as his top three choices.

Tower told a news conference he didn't want to speculate on names but, when asked about conservative opposition to Rockefeller, said "I think that Nelson Rockefeller is not as unpopular with conservative Republicans as some might imagine."

Brock said it is "difficult to challenge" Rockefeller's credentials, adding "He'll be readily acceptable by a great majority" of the GOP.

In the House, there was talk among Republicans of the party's national chairman, George Bush, like Ford a former member of the House.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, himself mentioned on some lists being prepared by Ford aides, suggested Ford broaden the party base by choosing a liberal such as Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts or Rep. John Anderson of Illinois.

Under the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, a vice presidential vacancy is filled by nomination of the president and confirmation by majority votes of both houses of Congress.

Watergate tapes may belong to Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate tapes and documents still locked in a government vault may belong to Richard M. Nixon even though he resigned the presidency.

The materials could be demanded for trials and civil suits stemming from the Watergate break-in, the Ellsberg break-in, wiretapping in the Nixon administration and related scandals.

White House and Justice Department officials say there is no clear rule of law establishing the ownership of those materials, but tradition would give them to Nixon.

"The precedent is there for a president taking his papers. There's no law, but we assume they are his," a source in the White House counsel's office said on Friday.

White House Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst said the Watergate materials for the time being remain in the custody of James D. St. Clair, the Boston attorney who headed Nixon's defense team.

St. Clair, who has the title of special counsel to the President, said Friday night he expects to remain on the job for about two weeks to wrap up some details of pending litigation over the tapes. During that time, he will be working for President Ford.

St. Clair said his association with Nixon has ended.

A spokesman for White House lawyers, Larry Speaks, said the tapes and documents remain under Secret Service guard in a locked vault in the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House.

Speaks said that to his knowledge, none of the material was removed when Nixon departed the White House and Washington.

As for the ultimate ownership, Speaks said, "The question of whether they're in the custody of the former president or the White House, we don't know."

But the weight of tradition appeared to give Nixon the better claim.

Justice Department spokesman John W. Hushen said, "In the past, presidential papers, which would include sound recordings, are in the custody of the outgoing president."

Department lawyers said they know of no legal precedent which would deprive Nixon of the materials if he wants them.

"The issue is unclear," Hushen said, because of the Supreme Court order upholding Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's subpoena of tapes of 64 conversations among Nixon and his former advisers.

That culminated in his decision to leave office.

But asked about immediate family plans, an aide said, "I think they just want to relax."

Even as he relaxes, however, Nixon finds himself in new circumstances. No longer is he immune from prosecution, civil action or being called as a witness in legal proceedings sprouting from Watergate.

At a more everyday level, perhaps typifying his new status, someone called as Nixon drove off in a golf cart, "Do you have a California driver's license?"

"No, but I have Secret Service," he replied. Nixon is entitled to agents' protection for the rest of his life.

So abrupt was the Nixon departure that his daughter, Julie, and her husband, David Eisenhower, remained in Washington to supervise packing of family effects at the White House. Daughter Tricia and her husband, Edward Cox, accompanied the former president and his wife, Pat, on the flight West.

Aides who accompanied Nixon on the trip said the staff was unable to handle the deluge of phone calls at the government-owned offices next to Nixon's estate.

With Nixon were former press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, former presidential assistant Stephen Bull and Col. Jack Brennan.

Ford: A saying in our future?

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Some months back when a writer asked Gerald Ford about his loyalty to Richard Nixon, the vice president replied that he would remain devoted until or unless (paraphrase) "I ever became convinced that I'd not been told the truth."

That's Jerry. Eagle Scout. Honest and righteous. Once when he was a congressman and a reserve Naval officer he turned down a Pentagon promotion because he felt it wasn't deserved. Another time he was quoted as saying, and meaning, "truth is the glue that holds government together." During the Senate hearings on his vice presidential nomination all the forces of law, including 430 investigating FBI agents, failed to turn up a dime's worth of evil-do in the Ford family closet.

Indeed, his apparently commendable ethical conduct has become as well known in the land as the references to his allegedly limited mental capacity (Lyndon Johnson said he doubted if Ford could walk and chew gum at the same time). One White House story has it that Ford was chosen over John Connally for Veep because "the nation couldn't survive another Spiro Agnew and Jerry's too dumb to be dishonest."

It may be, of course, one cannot rule it out these days, that events will yet remove Ford from the side of the angels. The way things go in this town, badly as of late, some scrap of paper or a long forgotten aide may smear the man from Michigan. But even if we do presume for the moment he is as straight arrow as Tonto, we must also ask ourselves whether honesty in this case is enough. It is time to insist that Richard Nixon's unelected successor give the people more than just honest rule.

Unfortunately, there is little in Ford's political history to suggest he can promise much more. Politically he has been a mossa-back, philosophically a Yahoo. One of his biographers, Newsman Bud Vestal of Michigan, says the nation should expect "no bold innovations or great New Deals" from a President Ford: "I expect he'd be inclined to stick with Nixon's programs, but even some of them, the more liberal ones, would be dropped. The Nixon family assistance idea, for example, is the kind of thing that horrifies Jerry. It's too radical for him."

Actually, the record shows, most bold social programs horrify Ford. In Congress he was opposed to massive federal aid to schools, opposed to Medicare in 1965, opposed to increasing the minimum wage in 1960, '66 and '73. Even civil rights legislation received only tacit Ford approval. Farm lobbyists in 1972 gave him a rock bottom 20 per cent rating for votes he cast on agriculture bills. In that same year organized labor rated him only 11 per cent in favor of laws affecting the nation's labor class. "At least Jerry's consistent," says a colleague, "all his political life he has been anti-working man."

Naturally, there is good reason why Ford has not been able, in two decades, to find time for the problems of commoners. His hours have been too much occupied with the elite. Big business considers him one of its own. The chief lobbyist for U.S. Steel is one of his best friends. Congressional proposals favoring industry (such as federal aid to Lockheed; invariably win his nod. "Bigness is no sin," says Ford. Certainly not. But an anti-people, pro-business attitude in an unelected president may be close to similar mockery. Despite this prospect there remains in many the hope Ford will green as president. He has said as much by advising reporters that his record "reflects Grand Rapids" and that as a national officer he "can be more flexible." Well, maybe. On the other hand there are nagging doubts beginning to form about Gerald Ford now that he looms so large in our future. How dreadful it would be if, in the rush to get rid of a discredited president, we were in the end stuck with a fellow whose only fitness for leadership was saintliness.

Things Dixon Talked About

50 YEARS AGO

Music lovers of Dixon and vicinity, who heard the young pianist in his two recitals in this city during the winter, will welcome the opportunity to hear him again Sunday afternoon at the Rock River Assembly at 2 o'clock.

A very brief session of the City Council was held last evening. The monthly payroll, amounting to $5,818.73, was read and voted paid. A few other matters of minor importance were discussed and the council adjourned.

Ford: By his record know him

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Anyone who doesn't expect major changes when and if Gerald Ford becomes president has not studied the record. Of course, the precise changes are impossible to predict today. Whatever his own thinking, Ford in the past has moved slowly, gathering input from colleagues with all shapes of opinion, then welding these ideas into pragmatic programs with enough of every man's ideas to secure his support.

In Congress, Ford moved up every time the Republicans were in disarray and looking for younger blood with fresh ideas to take leadership.

Ford began to fly quietly when Ford surprisingly blitzed into the chairmanship of the House Republican Conference, in a vote engineered by his Young Turk friends. The Conference, powerful on paper as the governing body of the Republican party in the House, was largely ceremonial in practice. With Ford in, ceremony was out. A consensus was found. Positive Republican position papers began to appear, replacing negative GOP reflexes to Democratic proposals.

Ford made minority leader in 1965, which put him at the head of the discouraged House Republicans. The first Ford push here was for "constructive" alternatives to President Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty.

Leading a group of young activists, Ford became softly bold in moving into Senate-House meetings through a Republican co-ordinating committee. It was not long before that body's principal proposals came heavily from Ford's men— revenue sharing as an alternative to big federal government, their own health care plan as a counter to President Johnson's Medicare, proposals for low income housing aid, disclosure of Congressional campaign finances and new means of preventing strikes which could cripple the nation.

Ford's major achievement in the House lay in changing the Republican party from negative opposition— against everything the Democrats favored— to "positivism," with a 40-plus part program even praised by the liberal opposition.

Though classified a conservative, Ford's overall voting record has made neither conservatives nor liberals happy. He was an early supporter of foreign aid. He voted for the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, the Equal Rights Amendment. He favored the District of Columbia Crime Bill providing for pretrial detention and no-knock entry, the 18-year-old vote, prayer in schools and for the election of presidents by direct popular vote. He was against provisions eliminating an independent legal services corporation for the poor. He was for exempting newspapers from anti-trust laws, for extra unemployment compensation in areas where unemployment is above 6.5 per cent, for the Tax Reform Act of 1969, for denying food stamps to strikers and families. He was a hawk on the Vietnam war. He voted against repealing the right-to-work provision of the Taft Hartley Act, opposed workmen's compensation for migrant workers and supported "binding arbitration by a third party" in national transportation emergencies.

Ford has been given high scores by the conservative American Security Council, and the Americans for Constitutional Action and low scores by the liberal Americans for Democratic Action and the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE).

In recent years, with a Republican in the White House, Ford as minority leader has seen his role as being the President's man. Beginning in 1969 he has voted with the President from 70 to 89 per cent of the time, well above the House Republican average. He has likewise consistently been well above the average in voting with the majority of his party and with the bipartisan majority.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

It was an honor for Dixon American Legion Post No. 12 to host the 13th district All Star game, also an honor to present the Dixon Park Board with a flagpole and flag.

To the Editor:

It has come to the attention that at about 1:40 p.m., on Thursday on the northwest corner of Highland Ave. and First St., it took two young lads with the feet work and their superior who used the paint roller to hold a thin board in line to paint two strips in an even manner to show the pedestrian walkway.

On their way back to the truck (van) which was parked on the west side of Highland Avenue on the south side of First Street, they had to child-play and stand around alley-gagging on the city taxpayers' money, of which they are earning to hold jobs of which it takes only no more than one or two people to perform.

What the heck is going on any-ways?

We, the people, of the city are paying their wages for them to put in a day's work, not to sponge openly than the written word.

Thank you:
Pat Burrs

listen to any problem be it a work or personal one.

Sure it is a hot place to work but then a lot of places are hot. Some of the people didn't like to work overtime. So they went to the plant manager and he changed it. But you can't run a factory on promises of people who say sure, "I'll work Saturday" and then they don't even show up for the five working days they should work.

Unions are fine if a factory needs one and some of the people here didn't think we needed one but we got it.

To the people that voted "yes" may they all be happy with their choice.

To the people who voted "no" may they be able to work and not have to worry about how to feed their family and pay bills if a strike should ever come.

For the ones that voted for the union because they wanted more money, when they come to work here they started out making more here than where they were working or they wouldn't have quit and come to work here.

As for myself, I can think of a lot of ways to spend the money it will cost me to join the union and pay dues each month.

This company came to our town and brought more jobs for the people here.

Now this is the thanks the people who came with the company get. Some thanks!

The employees didn't even give the plant manager a chance to see what he could do for them over what he has already done.

Ford's advisers are his closest friends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford's closest advisers are his close friends from a quarter century in the House and his obscure, hard-working vice presidential staff.

The only ones who held prominent positions in the Nixon administration are former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and White House aide Bryce Harlow, a top presidential assistant in both the Eisenhower and Nixon administrations.

Ford generally has operated on his own, relying less on his staff than his predecessors in the vice presidency.

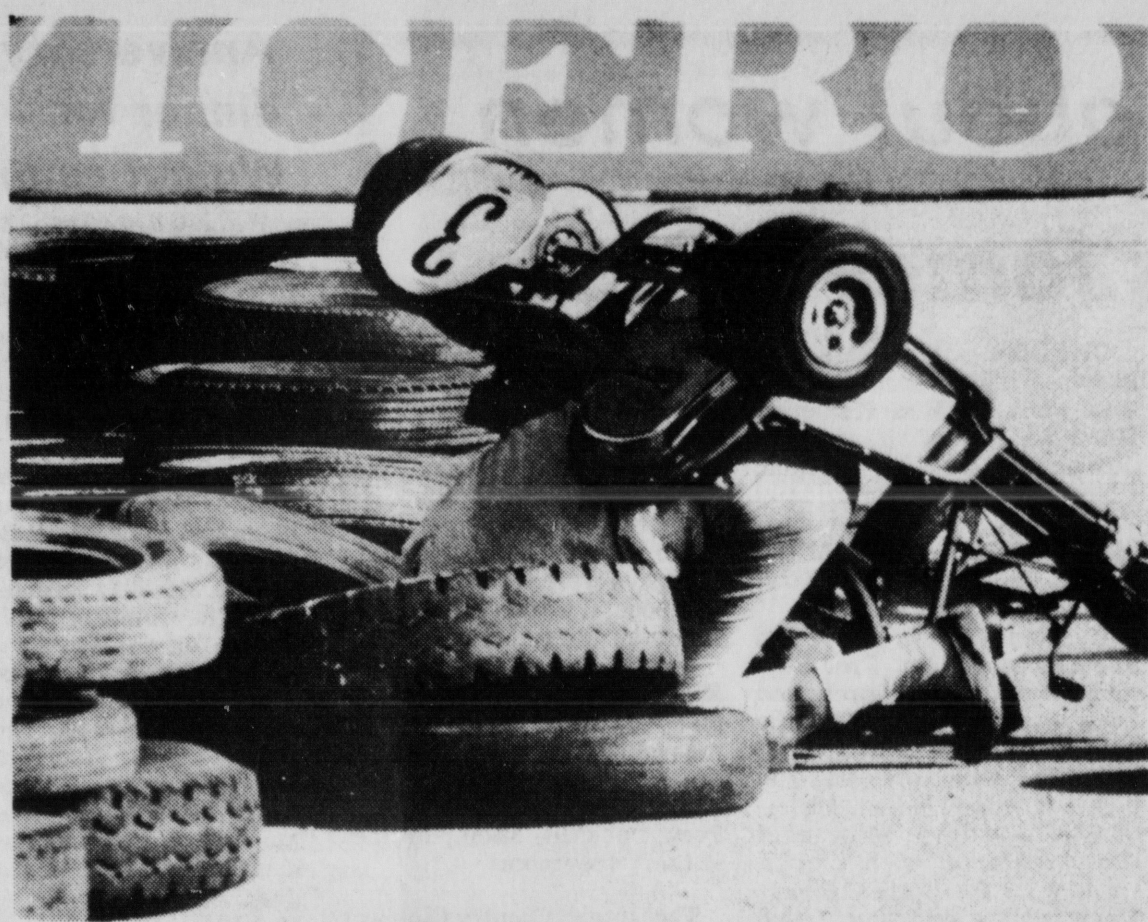

While traveling outside Washington as vice president, he often was accompanied by only a single military aide and his press secretary.

The top members of his vice presidential staff are Robert Hartmann, a 57-year-old former newspaperman who has been chief of staff, and L. William Seidman, a 53-year-old management consultant who joined his staff earlier this year.

Hartmann, who joined Ford's staff shortly after Ford became House Republican leader in 1965, is more of a political adviser than operating staff chief.

Laird, who was a member of the House before President Nixon named him secretary of defense, served with Ford on the House Appropriations Committee and helped Ford win the GOP leader's job. As chairman of the House Republican Conference, Laird was one of Ford's key lieutenants in the Republican leadership of the House.

Laird took a top White House post after the resignations of H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, but left less than a year later.

Albert Poon extricates himself after flipping into a pile of tires during the sixth International Karting Prix at Hong Kong. No injury except to his dignity. Defending champion Gary Emmick of the United States won.

Agnew abstains from comment

CROFTON, Md. (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew offered a terse "no comment" when asked about President Nixon's downfall.

Agnew, Nixon's 1968 and 1972 running mate, has avoided publicity since he resigned last October after a no contest plea to evading federal income tax charges.

The former vice president, now a budding export-importer, emerged from his office Thursday dressed in slacks and a pullover knit shirt, following what his secretary told reporters was "a working day just like any other."

Carrying a briefcase and tennis racket, he glanced at the rainy sky and made his way to his car, avoiding answering newsmen seeking comment on President Nixon's resignation.

Agnew lives 20 miles from here in a new $160,000 home.

Cooking with honey adds new zest to many dishes

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
During my brief stay in a German prison camp during World War II, there was precious little sugar with the meager rations. But to my surprise, the Germans occasionally lavished generous dollops of honey on the coarse black bread they doled out each day.

This became more understandable after I recently thumbed through Hazel Berto's book, "Cooking With Honey." (Crown). According to Mrs. Berto, the honey bee has survived disasters, presumably including wars, famine and the inroads of civilization to continue supplying man with its nectar.

Despite bulldozers that wiped out her meadows and deadly insecticides, the bee has continued to gain usage in a health-conscious nation.

There is a growing trend away from refined white sugar, whose easy solubility allows it to pass through the walls of the stomach. Some disciples of natural cooking substitute raw or dark brown sugar, but the most popular substitute is honey.

This natural, unrefined food is iniquitous because it is said to be the only unmanufactured sweet available in commercial quantities. Since 75 to 80 per cent of its composition is sugars, honey has an energy-producing value that is virtually unmatched.

Football players, swimmers and runners use honey for quick energy. And, Mrs. Berto says that Sir Edmund Hillary included it on his Mt. Everest expedition.

We have some 1,200 commercial bee keepers in America and with more than 300,000 amateur apiarists, this country produces about one third of the world's 900 million pounds of honey a year.

There are innumerable flavors of honey to choose from but most of it is made from orange, locust, sage, maple, blueberry, blackberry, buckwheat, clover and fireweed. Clover, sage and fireweed are among the milder types and are good for general cookery.

One dish I like is chicken breasts basted with honey and Port wine.

4 chicken breasts, boned, skinned and split
1 cup honey
1 cup Port wine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Dash nutmeg
Dash mace

Salt and pepper to taste
Season chicken with salt and pepper, place on broiler and cook until tender, or about 35 minutes. Turn and baste frequently with mixture of honey and the other ingredients. Serves 4-5.

Opening lead—Q♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Here is a good final hand for our be-kind-to-declarers week. South finds himself in four spades with four trumps to the ace opposite four little ones.

If trumps break 4-1 he is not going to make his contract, because he will have to lose a diamond as well as three trumps. Oh, yes! We could probably set up some arrangement of the missing 26 cards to allow South to handle a 4-1 break, but as you can see if you look at the East-West cards, trumps are going to break nicely. After all, we are being kind to declarers.

South wins the club lead in dummy and decides to try to ruff his two potential club losers with a couple of dummy's little trumps.

If he goes after the ruffs immediately East will overruff and the contract fail. If he plays ace and another trump, West will win the second trump and be nasty enough to play out his last trump winner to leave only one trump in dummy.

Then what should South do? He should lead a low trump at trick two and duck. Then when he gets in next he simply plays his ace of trumps and goes about his business of ruffing clubs. East won't be able to overruff, West won't be able to lead a third round and the contract will be safe.

OREGON — A princess-style gown of white Chantilly lace was worn by Miss Katherine Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Reed Sr., Oregon, when she became the bride of James Edward Peek, son of the Morris Peeks, Jackson, Mich., July 27 in the First Presbyterian Church.

The wedding was performed at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Fred Bunning, pastor of the church, and vows were exchanged by the couple before an altar decorated with twin arrangements of white gladioli, Majestic daisies and ivy. White satin bows centered with ribbon clusters in the bride's colors, green, yellow and blue, were also attached to the sanctuary pews.

Musicians for the ceremony were Mrs. Jonas Martin, organist, and Gary Wingert, soloist.

An insertion of white satin centered by miniature buttons trimmed the front of the bride's gown, which featured a satin and lace wedding-ring collar and tapered sleeves with satin cuffs. Her floor-length skirt, accented by a scalloped hemline, extended into a full chapel train, and her white braid picture hat was trimmed with lace flowers and silk illusion. Strands of ivy fell from her bouquet of white daisy pompons, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Lynn Carlton, Chicago, the bride's maid of honor, was attired in a full-length gown of lime-green Quiana jersey styled with a circular skirt topped by an empire bodice featuring a halter neckline. Matching green ribbons trimmed her white picture hat, and the nosegay she carried combined white pompons, green daisies and ivy.

Identically-designed gowns of yellow and pastel-blue Quiana jersey were worn by the attendants, Miss Robbin Reed, Honolulu, Hawaii, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Thomas Read, Des Moines, Iowa. Yellow and blue ribbons accented their white picture hats, and their nosegays were formed of white pompons, ivy and daisies tinted to match their costumes.

George Peek, Birmingham, Mich., was his brother's best man, and serving as groomsmen and ushers were Joseph C. Reed Jr., DeLeon Springs, Fla., the bride's brother, and Carl Peek, Jackson, Mich., brother of the bridegroom.

The Oregon Country Club was the setting for a reception following the service when guests were registered by Mrs. Miguel Condi and reception music was provided by the Gary Wingert Trio. A decorated wedding cake was served by Mrs. William Tremble and Mrs. John Putnam, and gifts for the couple were displayed by Mrs. Joseph C. Reed Jr.

The new Mrs. Peek, a graduate of Oregon Community High School, received a B. S. degree in education in 1972 at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, where she served as president of Alpha Phi sorority during her senior year. A member of the PEO Sisterhood, she is a physical education instructor at DeLand Junior High School in DeLand, Fla., where they are residing at 1442 E. Wisconsin Ave.

Her husband graduated from Jackson Community College and Michigan State University, and is employed as county manager of the Chelsea Title and Guaranty Company in DeLand, where he is a member of the Kiwanis Club and the DeLand Chamber of Commerce.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A while back I wrote and asked about parents who object to a 15-year-old daughter dating a certain boy. You said, "Often it makes her rebellious and more determined than ever—depending on the girl." Here is my story:

When I first met Stan we had a beautiful relationship. Suddenly my folks said we were getting too serious and insisted we split. We did, for a couple of months, then we decided to meet secretly. After a few weeks we got into really heavy sex, something we had never done before. We sneaked around for six months. I nearly died of fright when I thought I was pregnant. His attitude was terrible. "Goodbye and good luck, idiot." Thank God it was a false alarm, but it did put an end to our seeing each other.

Now I'm 17 and fooling around with two married men, not to mention a few others. But I made up my mind last night that if I could have changed so much since my folks kept me away from Stan, I can change again—back to a sweet, decent girl with good morals. I am just as determined to make a new start as I was to defy my parents.

But somehow I believe if they hadn't forbidden me to see Stan we wouldn't have gone all the way. Please advise both parents and young girls who have this problem to play it cool. Sometimes the answer the girl works out by herself is the hardest to live with.—Experienced And Burned

Dear Burned: Apparently you need to blame your folks for what has happened, but please remember that it is impossible to predict what your life would have been like had you respected your parents' wishes.

I do congratulate you, however, on getting your head together and deciding to change your life-style. It won't be easy, but it can be done and I wish you a world of luck.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you have respect for the psychiatric profession, but on several occasions you have been quite honest about the incompetents and phonies in the field. I need your opinion before I throw out any more hard-earned money.

The psychiatrist I've been seeing charges $45 for 40 minutes. During this time he answers the telephone (at least twice during each session) and he also responds to knocks on his door.

When I complained about the interruptions, he said such things should not bother me—that I should just keep talking. Well, Ann, it's hard to talk if no one is listening.

I feel the least he can do is give me some extra time to make up for the time he spends doing things unrelated to my therapy. I've suggested it but he refuses to do so. What is your opinion?—I.R.J.

Dear I.R.J.: Each therapist runs his practice to suit himself. Most psychiatrists accept no phone calls during sessions and their secretaries are instructed to knock on the door only if there's an emergency.

The important thing is to get good results. If this doctor has helped you, stick with him. If he hasn't, by all means terminate the sessions and start with someone else. But inquire in advance about interruptions or you might run into the same problem again.

Food for Americans Try peach freezer jam

By AILEEN CLAIRE
The peach crop is at its peak. Even though lovers of this tart-sweet fruit indulge themselves to the fullest while the fresh fruit is at its tasty best, it is always a pleasure to have a few jars of jams and jellies put up for the fall and winter months. A different approach to canning fresh peaches is to make jam and store the jams in the freezer. Peach freezer jam then can be removed from the refrigerator to thaw for use when needed.

PEACH FREEZER JAM
(using liquid fruit pectin)
2 pounds fully ripe peaches (about)
3 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
¼ cup lemon juice
½ (6 ounce) bottle liquid fruit pectin

Rinse, peel and remove pits from peaches. Fully crush peaches, one layer at a time, to let juice flow freely. Measure 2 cups crushed fruit; turn into bowl. Add sugar and corn syrup; stir thoroughly. Mix lemon juice and pectin, pour over peach mixture; stir three minutes. Leaving ¼ to ½-inch headspace, quickly ladle into washed and scalded jars or freezer containers (½ pint sizes are ideal. Do not use containers that hold more than one pint). Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Let stand at room temperature until set (this may take up to 24 hours), then place in freezer for at least 24-hour period. Remove from freezer as needed and store in refrigerator. Once thawed eat within three weeks. Makes 6 (½ pint) containers.

Smart looking back-to-school fall clothes

Snappy new separates for 7 through 14-year-old girls have taken inspiration from big sister for some of the smartest looking back-to-school clothes for fall.

Tartan plaids and patterned sweaters make big news in the schoolyard in an array of warm fall colors. This season the sweater message is loud and clear. Bright diamond patterns colored in rust and camel sparkle on a zipped-up sweater and teams with a kicky pleated skirt. The ever-popular pullover is updated with varsity stripes in contrasting colors on collar and cuffs. When pulled over trim fitting pants they make a dynamite duo.

Swingy fly-away jackets and spiffy waist-length jackets come in color combinations of brown and camel, navy and rust, and red and green plaid. Whether they complement pants that match or skirts, jackets are tops for fall.

Garage sales increase

By JEAN BARNES
From now until the snow begins again next winter, a peculiar kind of flower will be blooming in profusion throughout the land.

This is the garage sale sign which proclaims a householder's intent to get rid of an accumulation of unwanted things. As a form of folk merchandising, these signs represent a "windfall profit" on both sides of the bargain counter.

If you want to use these sales as a means of enlarging your collection you should have a few rules in mind before you start.

Bear in mind that reproductions are plentiful. You might be told, "it was my grandmother's" but that has nothing to do with its age. Reproductions have been around for many years and are not confined to items of glassware. Metal, china, pottery items and furniture also are suspect.

If you want to keep your collection top-grade, buy nothing but the best examples within your price range. Don't be tempted to sacrifice quality for a bargain price.

Save your major purchases for a reputable antiques dealer who can give you an unqualified guarantee of authenticity. Be prepared to bargain. The primary object of a garage sale is to get rid of things. Don't be afraid to leave a bid on an item. You might wind up with what you want at the price you want to pay.

Watch for the "sleepers." It is still possible to pick up a good example of fracture or a fine piece of lace for a small fraction of their value.

Examine the item for damage — chips, cracks, dents. Carefully weigh the pros and cons of acquiring a damaged piece, even at a bargain price. Remember, in most cases a sale will be final.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-612: Ned G., aged 33, teaches a men's Bible Class. "Dr. Crane," he began, "we are to discuss capital punishment in our lesson next week. A California clergyman had his home invaded by a thug, who tied him up, then raped the clergyman's wife and finally stabbed her to death. "But the clergyman later was reported to have said he forgave the man and didn't want him punished. "Dr. Crane, did Christ's advice about turning the other cheek mean we should submit to such brutality to our family?"

Christ's "Horse Sense" In my address from hundreds of American pulpits, I have used the title: "Jesus — the World's Greatest Applied Psychologist."

Therein I show that Christ was a superb exponent of "Horse Sense" or gumption. Yet throughout the intervening centuries, many clerics have misunderstood Jesus and led us to believe He was not only a complete pacifist but as liberal and indiscriminate with largess as maudlin Uncle Sam.

Christ said "If a man smite thee on one cheek, turn the other also."

But Jesus didn't say if a man smite thy wife or child, then shove your other son or daughter to the monster to be assaulted or slain, too.

Though Jesus suggested that we give a villain a second chance when he attacks us personally, Christ didn't advocate that we grant similar leeway to men who try to destroy the freedoms that mankind has spent 10,000 years and millions of lives to wrest from tyrants.

These hard won heritages from our gallant dead, include our American Constitution's guarantees of freedom of worship, of public assembly, of sanctity of our homes from unwarranted search and seizure.

And to prove that Christ meant what He said, you Bible readers may consult John 2:15, where Jesus was so incensed at the desecration of the Jewish Temple by the crass money-changers, that he resorted to physical violence to prevent such sacrilege.

For when Jesus braided a whip and drove the villains out of the Temple, and upset the tables of the moneychangers, that's physical violence in any man's language!

Jesus also lauded the policemen and soldiers in the 7th Beatitude, wherein he said: "Blessed are the peacemakers."

Please remember that "peacemakers" are not the maudlin pacifists and sentimentalists that are so concerned over the sadistic rapists that they forget the innocent victims who were assaulted, stabbed and often tortured in front of their own family! "Peacemakers" are those who keep the lawless in check and thus make it possible for our wives and children to walk upon the streets in safety!

They are the policemen, the militia and our Army, Navy and Air Corps, who likewise keep sadistic foreign monsters from destroying the freedoms of Magna Carta and our own U.S. Constitution.

Jesus didn't even believe in coddling the lazy, stupid and shiftless poor, for He let probably 25,000 die of hunger and disease within sound of His own voice during His three-year ministry.

Only those with faith, ambition and enough elbow grease to seek Him, got fed or healed!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Kiss can detect cystic fibrosis

Does a child have cystic fibrosis, the incurable lung disease? Mothers can help detect C-F by kissing their babies. One of the symptoms of this disease is an extremely salty sweat; a large percentage of the diagnosed cases has been due to the mothers noting the salty taste when kissing their babies. By administering a more scientific "sweat test," to determine the salt content, a physician can definitely diagnose a C-F child. Other symptoms are recurrent wheezing, cough heard every day for more than two months, pneumonia more than once during childhood, excessive appetite but poor weight gain, and clubbing (enlargement) of the ends of the fingers.

"Kiss your baby week" is being held August 25-31 in Illinois to help detect undiagnosed cases of cystic fibrosis. "This is one way we have to help parents become aware of the disease to insure an early diagnosis. Too many children with C-F are misdiagnosed, or diagnosed only after the disease has progressed quite far," according to Robert J. Wiesen, president of the Northern Illinois Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Cystic fibrosis is a genetic disease which affects the lungs and pancreas of its victims. Both parents must carry the gene to produce a C-F child; and it is believed that there are some 10 million gene carriers in the U.S. About one in every 1,500 newborns inherit the disease.

Two humanities, Spanish courses added at Sauk

Bradley University, Peoria, is offering two humanities courses on an extension basis at Sauk Valley College this fall. The courses, ENG 330, The Midwest in American Literature; and SPE 308, Freedom and Responsibilities of Speech, are both three semester hour courses and are designed to fulfill general education requirements for persons in the administration of justice curriculum although other students may also enroll. Robert Crouse, coordinator of the SVC Criminal Justice Program, indicated the classes will be held at SVC on Wednesdays at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. and on the Bradley campus on Mondays at the same times.

Dr. Lester H. Brune, Chairman, Administration of Criminal Justice, Bradley University, will host a meeting in room 2K2 on the SVC campus on Thursday, August 14, at 4 p.m., for all those interested in enrolling for the courses. Admission and financial aid information as well as academic advising for graduation requirements will be available at the meeting.

Conversational Spanish for Personnel in Health Occupations (GSI 012) will be offered this fall by Sauk Valley College at Sterling Community General Hospital. Nurses, technicians, case workers and others in the medical professions will have the opportunity to learn enough basic Spanish to facilitate their work and be of more service to the Spanish-speaking.

Since effective second language learning is dependent on a great deal of oral practice, this Conversational Spanish course is scheduled to meet twice a week (Monday and Wednesday evenings) from September 16 to November 20. Three college transfer credits will be earned by students who complete the course. The program will provide lecture hours as well as lab hours for student participation and practice. A set of tapes for home practice will be available to accompany the text which deals with many practical patient-nurse exchanges. Specific emphasis will be placed on practical questions relating to hospital administration, insurance and follow-up which are frequently concerns of hospitalized persons.

The instructor, Maria Montalvo Barton, is a native of Cuba and has taught high school and college Spanish classes in this area. Registration may be completed at the first class meeting. Further information can be obtained by contacting the Office of Community Services, Sauk Valley College, 288-5511, Ext. 212.

State Fair all wet

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Fairgoers hoped for a break in the rains today as the Illinois State Fair entered its second day of carnival rides, livestock exhibitions and music.

But the National Weather Service gave the visitors little comfort — predicting an 80 per cent chance that the rains would continue through Sunday.

The fair opened Friday, but by midday a steady rain forced many visitors to the shelters of the cattle barns and the beer and concession tents.

The first of two performances scheduled for the music group Sha NaNa was canceled and the group's second performance was delayed by rain for more than two hours.

Before the downpour, a festive parade through downtown Springfield went off on schedule.

Gov. Daniel Walker and Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan set aside their political differences temporarily to join hands with Fair Manager Paul King in snipping the red ribbon at the main gate.

"It's open. Come on in," Walker waved to the crowd which viewed the ribbon-cutting.

The rains failed to halt the livestock judgments, and the final two of the three grand champion market animals were selected.

AFSCME files petition in bargaining dispute

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Illinois' largest public employee organization, has filed petitions to represent the employees of two additional state agencies in collective bargaining.

In separate petitions to the State Office of Collective Bargaining, Illinois AFSCME seeks to represent employees of the Department of Health and the Department of Labor.

In July, the union petitioned the Office of Collective Bargaining for the right to represent Department of Corrections and Department of Public Aid employees at the collective bargaining table.

As with the earlier petitions, both the Mental Health and Labor petitions were accompanied by cards signed by an overwhelming majority of employees in the respective units requesting representation by AFSCME, Wilson said.

The 11,500 institutional workers who will be covered in the Mental Health bargaining unit requested by AFSCME constitute the largest single group of employees seeking bargaining to date, under last fall's executive order granting collective bargaining to state employees.

The Department of Labor petition seeks union recognition and bargaining on behalf of 4,300 professional, technical and clerical employees of the department.

Under the executive order, the Office of Collective Bargaining is obligated to determine the validity of the union's request for recognition and to schedule an election to determine if the union shall bargain for employees.

With the four major state departments — Corrections, Mental Health, Public Aid and Labor — Illinois AFSCME has now petitioned for bargaining

August precip outlook good

DE KALB — Northern Illinois farmers and gardeners should find cause for hope in the long-range forecast issued today by Northern Illinois University meteorologists.

Following a July that was warmer and drier than normal, August averages should show near normal temperatures but above normal precipitation, according to Jack Villmow of the NIU Weather Service.

In the monthly NIU statistical report for northern Illinois, Villmow notes that July temperatures averaged 74 degrees, compared with a normal 73 degree average. Rainfall totaled 2.08 inches, compared with a "normal" 4.45 inch average.

Highs for the month were 96 degrees on July 13 and July 14, considerably below the all-time 109 degree record set on July 14, 1936, Villmow adds.

The low was 53 degrees on July 6, compared with the 41 degree record low for the area on July 16, 1945.

Judged by the criteria of 89 degrees considered as a "hot" day, there were eight in July, about normal, with no record highs or lows established during the month.

A total of 279 cooling degree says (number of unit degrees above a daily average of 65 degrees) accumulated during the month, reflecting the prolonged use of air conditioners in this area, Villmow says.

IHSA football practice begins on August 19

BLOOMINGTON — The start of 1974 football practice — and the beginning of the first step toward participation in the first-ever Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Football Playoff Series — begins Monday, August 19 for the Association's 529 football-playing member schools.

Some schools will issue equipment and arrange to have players take their required physical examinations at an earlier date, but under the rules of the Association, no school may organize or practice its football team before the second Monday preceding Labor Day.

Under changes in the Association's By-laws for this school year, any or all fall sports teams at a member school may participate in their first contest (game or meet) on the day school opens. August 19 also is the date schools may begin practice in fall boys baseball, boys cross country, boys fall golf, boys soccer, girls tennis — all sports in which team and individual champions will be crowned in statewide competition.

In football, players must engage in a minimum of 90 hours of actual field practice on each of 14 days (excluding Sunday) preceding the first game or scrimmage against a team from another school. Opening games may be played beginning Friday, Sept. 6, and not before. Preliminary (First-Round) games in the Football Playoff Series will be held Wednesday, Nov. 6. Champions in each of the five classes will be crowned on the weekend of Nov. 22-23 on the artificial turf of Hancock Stadium, Illinois State University, Normal.

Officials registered with the IHSA in football — as well as principals, athletic directors, coaches and other faculty at member schools — will be given uniform instructions of the 1974 National Alliance Football Rules at 23 sites throughout the state and surrounding area by five IHSA-appointed rules interpreters. Serving as interpreters this year will be IHSA Asst. Exec. Secretary L. L. Astroth, Norman Geske of Wheeling, Charles Hillman of Hinckley, Ted Search of Chester and Robert L. Wright of Champaign.

Several major changes in high school football rules are expected to add greatly to the excitement of the games, yet provide additional protection from injury. Among the major changes are:

1) Most IHSA conferences have adopted the Tiebreaker Plan to be used in the Football Playoff Series to allow the league championship to be won on the playing field. Briefly, if the two teams play to a tie score at the end of the regulation four quarters, a "sudden death overtime" will follow. Each team will have the opportunity to score from the 10-yard line in a series of four (or less) plays, and the team that outpoints the opponent in the "overtime" period will be declared the winner of the game. For example, if Team A is on offense to begin the "overtime" and scores, regardless of the number of alloted downs it needs to score, Team B will have four downs (or less) to either score enough points to tie again or to win. If Team B does not score enough points to tie or surpass Team A, then Team A will win the game. If Team B scores more points (a touchdown and extra point compared to a touchdown only or field goal), then it is the winner. If both teams score equal points in the first exchange of down series, the procedure is repeated until a winner is determined.

2) Blocking below the waist will be prohibited during kicking plays after the ball has been kicked. This significant change has been instituted to expand the protection against knee injury that has been ongoing at the high school level for several years. On kickoffs, no member of the team receiving the ball may block an opponent below the waist. On punting plays, members of the team punting the ball may block below the waist on the line of scrimmage until the ball is kicked, and members of the team receiving the punt may not block below the waist on the return.

3) In an effort to allow teams the opportunity to "become accustomed" to their "own" ball, to ease the potential strain financially of the cost of equipment for a school, and to eliminate cause for undue delays in administration of the game, each team may use a football of its choice, which meets rules specifications, during the time it is on offense. Legality of the footballs to be used by the competing teams will be determined before the game by the referee.

4) Any player on either team may request a charged timeout for his team. Previously, this privilege was limited to

Three Sox homers add to Perry woes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gaylord Perry's slump continued Friday night as Chicago pounded him for four runs in one inning and the White Sox went on to down the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

Perry won his 15th consecutive game on July 2, but has yet to record his 16th victory in seven attempts.

"He's (Perry) throwing a little different now than he was in the beginning of the season," said Jorge Orta, who homered in the sixth to tie the score for the Sox at 2-2.

Orta's blast came immediately after Pat Kelly put one into the seats and was followed by two more runs when Dick Allen scored on Carlos May's double and May scored on Bill Sharp's sacrifice fly, giving the White Sox a 4-2 lead.

"I don't know exactly what it is, but his pitches don't seem to be moving as much as they used to," Orta added.

The White Sox collected their fifth and final run in the eighth inning when Allen hit his 30th home run of the season.

"I felt great out there," said Perry who went the distance. "I have nothing to complain about. I had one bad inning. I was more consistent than I've been in a while."

Perry said Kelly's and Allen's home runs were on bad pitches, but Orta hit a good outside fastball.

"I wish I'd do a lot more things wrong and win a game," Perry said. "You always want to and try to stop your slump, but I'll come out of it. As long as you know there's nothing physically wrong you know you'll come out of it."

Perry is now 15-7.

Stan Bahnsen, 10-13, was the winner for Chicago and was helped by Terry Forster's 16th save.

Bahnsen was removed with the bases loaded in the ninth. He gave up a run in the fourth when Charlie Spikes, Oscar Gamble and Tom McCraw hit consecutive singles.

The Tribe put another on the board in the fifth when Frank Duffy singled home John Lowenstein.

The Indians made it 5-3 in the ninth when with two outs Bahnsen walked Lowenstein, Duffy doubled, John Ellis walked and Spikes singled home Lowenstein.

Northrup aids Expo victory

Cepeda can still play

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"You know," observed Orlando Cepeda, "I can still play baseball."

The Boston Red Sox apparently had their doubts during spring training, when they released the 36-year-old slugger. But given a chance recently by the Kansas City Royals, Cepeda is proving the Boston brass — and a lot of other people — wrong.

Cepeda drove in five runs Friday night, pacing the Royals to a 13-3 romp over the Milwaukee Brewers. In five games with his new club, he has seven hits in 23 times at bat and has driven in 10 runs.

Friday night against Milwaukee, Cepeda helped Royals ace Steve Busby post his 17th victory against nine defeats. He doubled home two runs in the first inning, then slammed a bases-loaded double to drive in three more runs in the third as Kansas City jumped out to a 12-1 lead.

Red Sox 6, A's 2

Juan Beniquez' bases-loaded double keyed a four-run second inning that lifted the Red Sox past the A's in a battle of AL division leaders.

Beniquez drove in two runs and then came around to score on an infield out and an error by Oakland shortstop Dal Maxvill. Doug Griffin drove in the other run in the inning with an infield grounder.

Twins 6, Orioles 2

The Twins grabbed a 6-0 lead with two runs in each of the first three innings and sailed past Baltimore.

Rangers 4, Tigers 3

Mike Hargrove's two-out single in the 14th inning lifted the Rangers to victory.

Jim Sundberg opened the 14th with a single and moved up on a sacrifice. After Lenny Randle flied out and Jeff Burroughs was intentionally walked, Hargrove delivered his game-winning hit.

Angels 7, Yankees 1

Rookie Frank Tanana stopped New York on seven hits while Bobby Valentine drove in three runs with a pair of singles. It was first victory for Tanana, 7-14, in a starting role since beating Oakland May 25. He struck out seven and did not walk a batter.

National League

It didn't take Jim Northrup long to get himself acclimated to his new surroundings in the National League.

Purchased by Montreal from Detroit earlier this week, Northrup at first balked at reporting, then showed up in time for Friday night's game at Houston. The Astros wish he had waited a little longer.

All the veteran outfielder did was stroke a game-tying home run in the seventh inning, and a single touching off the winning rally in the ninth as the Expos nipped Houston 4-3.

The score was 2-2 in the ninth when Northrup laced his second hit of the game. He moved up on a walk to Ken Singleton and then scampered home on Barry Foote's single. Ron Hunt singled home another run.

The Expos needed that extra cushion because the Astros pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth on Cesar Cedeño's two-out single. But reliever Don Carrithers nailed down the victory for Dennis Blair.

Mets 4, Reds 1

Don Hahn scored New York's first run on a double by pitcher Bob Apodaca, and then added a three-run home run as New York stalled Cincinnati.

Apodaca, 4-5, permitted just two hits in seven innings and his fourth-inning double, only his second hit of the season, drove in Hahn.

Braves 3, Phillies 2

Ralph Garr doubled in the 11th inning and then scored Atlanta's winning run on a sacrifice fly by Darrell Evans as the Braves edged Philadelphia.

Giants 3, Cubs 0

Home runs by Gary Matthews and Dave Kingman backed the six-hit pitching of Jim Barr and the Giants shut out Chicago.

Pirates 7, Padres 3

Pittsburgh won its fifth straight, beating San Diego behind Jim Rooker's eight-hitter.

Two errors by Padre shortstop Enzo Hernandez helped Pittsburgh to three runs in the first inning and Rennie Stennett homered in the second.

Schlee leads PGA

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — "I don't like to call it self-hypnosis," Gary Player said. "The name for it is concentration — that's a word most golfers know. Concentration and hard work."

Thus, the 150-pound shotmaking computer from Johannesburg described the mental and physical discipline that carried him to the Masters and British Open championships this year and now has sent him surging into contention for the 56th PGA crown.

"I knew I had a lot of shots to make up. I know it looks like I'm unemotional out there. I suppose I am. I just drop my head, look at the ground and keep going."

Player was five shots out of the lead, starting the second round Friday in the late afternoon after John Schlee had forged into the undisputed lead with 68-67—135 and four other players, including Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, had posted sub-par scores for 36 holes.

Then came a drenching, 45-minute shower, suspending play for that period, and the situation looked even bleaker for the late starters, chief of whom were Player, Sam Snead and Arnold Palmer.

Then came Player, marching over the fairways of the 7,050-yard Tanglewood course, spewing out birdies like a relentless machine.

It was almost dark after a long, wet and taxing day when the 37-year-old South African came home with a record-tying six-under-par 64, which turned him into a definite threat for a third major championship this season.

Going into the final 36 holes today and Sunday, Schlee at 135 holds a one-stroke lead over Hubert Green, 68-68—136, followed by Player and his South African fellow countryman, Bobby Cole, 69-68, tied at 137; Jack Nicklaus, 69-69—138, and rallying Lee Trevino, 73-66—

For one stretch of holes, at least, the eighth through the 14th, Player looked like the best practitioner of the craft in the space of seven holes and reeling off five consecutive threes.

"Have I ever done better?" the dark-eyed South African repeated a question afterward. "In the Masters, I had six birdies in a row. That's better, I think."

Player's 64 tied the PGA record, set by winner Bobby Nichols and Nicklaus in the PGA at Columbus Country Club in 1964. It was the best competitive round ever played over the par 35-35—70 Tanglewood course, a hilly layout with gun-barrel fairways, 111 sand bunkers and rough as tough as steel wool.

Of the afternoon starters, only the 62-year-old Sam Snead and reed-thin Al Geiberger, besides Player, managed to conquer the course — and they really only soothed her.

Snead, after a bad start, finished with birdies on the final two holes, sinking 10-foot putts, for a 71. Geiberger shot his second straight par 70. They were tied at 140 with Ray Floyd, Leonard Thompson, Frank Beard and Tommy Aaron. Aaron and Beard shot second round 67s.

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Top second-round scores Friday in the 56th PGA national championship on the 7,050-yard, par-70 Tanglewood Golf Club course:

John Schlee 68-67—135
Hubert Green 68-68—136
Gary Player 73-64—137
Bobby Cole 69-68—137
Jack Nicklaus 69-69—138
Lee Trevino 73-66—139
Frank Beard 73-67—140
Tommy Aaron 73-67—140
Ray Floyd 68-72—140
Sam Snead 69-71—140
Al Geiberger 70-70—140
Leonard Thompson 69-71—140

Chris likes noise

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Young Chris Evert, as cool a tennis player as ever crossed the Atlantic to nab a Wimbledon title for the United States, says she likes to see fans get excited — even if it's for her opponents.

Chris and her younger sister, Jeanne, seeded No. 2 in women's doubles at the $130,000 U.S. Clay Court Tennis Championships, all but lost their third-round match Friday night and the fans were really getting with it in behalf of their opponents.

"I think it's great," Chris said about the rooting after the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., combo overcame a 5-2 third-set deficit and defeated Jenny Walker of England and Christine O'Neil of Australia 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Chris, who says she prefers grass and hard courts to clay, has been besieged by autograph hounds along with her fiancée Jimmy Connors throughout the week's action at the Indianapolis Racquet Club.

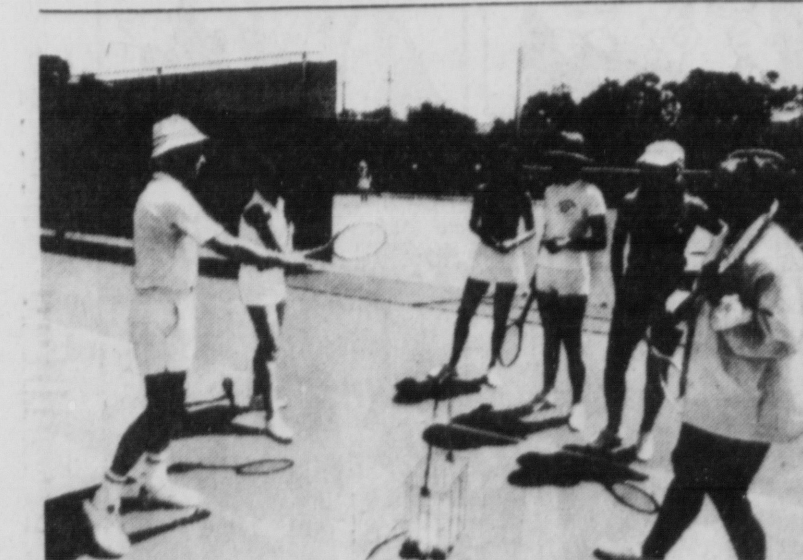

Earlier in the day, Chris moved another step closer to her third consecutive U.S. Clay Court singles title by easily defeating No. 6 seed Virginia Ruzic of Romania 6-0, 6-1.

Meanwhile, Connors, who won the men's singles at Wimbledon and is seeded first here, advanced to the quarter-finals by clobbering Germany's Hans Phomann 6-2, 6-1.

TENNIS FOR THE FUN OF IT

BY ROD LAVER & ROY EMERSON

What sort of conditioning program do you recommend?

Conditioning is as important as developing your technique.

ROY. I think it's fair to say that we Australians take physical condition a little more seriously than most American players. I've always believed in keeping in shape. I skip rope a lot, do a lot of running and do a lot of basic jumping exercises for agility.

ROD. I like running, too, but if you're serious about getting in shape for tennis you should do more than simply jog. What I do, when I'm training, is to maybe run a mile, then sprint 40 or 50 yards, and jog some more, and sprint again. The point of sprinting is that it helps keep your speed. The running helps your endurance. Sit ups and other abdominal exercises are very good.

ROY. And one of the best exercises you can do is a Harry Hopman favorite.

ROD. Not the kangaroo hop.

ROY. That's it. It's not for everybody, but it's a wonderful exercise for building endurance and developing agility. You stand with your feet just about together, hands relaxed at the side. You jump as high as you can, reaching high up with your hands and when you come down you land lightly on your toes, bending your knees and getting down into a squat position. Lean forward a little and repeat it — oh, anywhere, from 10 to 100 times.

ROD. Five, if you're a beginner.

Included in the taped messages will be interviews with Illinois coaches and players, previews of upcoming events, ticket and special-event information, results of games and meets, looks at and talks with upcoming opponents and much more.

The Fighting Illini I-Line will be available to the press and public 24 hours a day by calling area code 217-333-0111. Fans, reporters and announcers will be able to get the latest up-to-date information on the Fighting Illini every day from 217-333-0111.

The turnstile count was 21,560 for two exhibition contests

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The turnstile count was 21,560. Not at Washington. Not at Baltimore. At both.

Fans stayed away in droves at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium where 6,792 people came to see the Detroit Lions beat the Colts 6-3 in a National Football League exhibition game.

And only 14,768 people were interested enough to watch the Houston Oilers — the worst team in the NFL last year — beat George Allen's Washington Redskins 48-3 at RFK Stadium.

If the NFL was worried, it wasn't saying. Jim Kensil, the executive director of the NFL, declined to say anything.

"Any comment on that would have to come from the owners," said Kensil, reached by telephone at his home in New York.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said, "It's a shame for football."

Dave Wooley's four-yard touchdown strike with six minutes left in the game enabled the Lions to offset a Toni Linhart field goal of 37 yards for the Colts.

Rookie tackle Archie Pearson got to Baltimore quarterback Bob Bobrowski twice, forcing the Colts to punt from deep in their own territory and helping to set up the winning touchdown.

Rookie quarterback Jim Foote led the Oilers by completing 10 of 16 passes for 206 yards and two touchdowns before leaving the game early in the fourth quarter.

Foote's 42-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Billy Johnson, another rookie, gave the Oilers a 7-0 lead late in the first period.

President Ford's address

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of President Ford's address following his swearing-in on Friday:

Mr. Chief Justice, my dear friends, my fellow Americans.

The oath I have taken is the same oath that was taken by George Washington and by every president under the Constitution. But I assume the presidency under extraordinary circumstances, never before experienced by Americans. This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts.

Therefore, I feel it is my first duty to make an unprecedented compact with my countrymen. Not an inaugural speech, not a fireside chat, not a campaign speech. Just a little straight talk among friends. And I intend it to be the first of many.

I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots. So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers. And I hope that such prayers will also be the first of many.

If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by any secret promises. I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform, I am indebted to no men and only to one woman — my dear wife — as I begin this very difficult job.

I have not sought this enormous responsibility, but I will not shirk it. Those who nominated and confirmed me as vice president were my friends and are my friends. They were of both parties, elected by all the people, and acting under the Constitution in their name. It is only fitting then, that I should pledge to them and to you that I will be the President of all the people.

Thomas Jefferson said the people are the only sure reliance for the preservation of our liberty. And down the years Abraham Lincoln renewed this American article of faith, asking: "Is there any better way or equal hope in the world?"

I intend, on next Monday, to request of the speaker of the House of Representatives and the president pro tempore of the Senate the privilege of appearing before the Congress to share with my former colleagues and with you, the American people, my views on the priority business of the nation, and to solicit your views and their views. And may I say to the speaker and the others if I could meet with you right after this, these remarks, I would appreciate it.

Even though this is late in an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together, and no way anybody can win except by serving the people's urgent needs. We cannot stand still or slip backwards. We must go forward, now, together.

To the peoples and the governments of all friendly nations, and I hope that could encompass the whole world, I pledge an uninterrupted and sincere search for peace. America will remain strong and united, but its strength will remain dedicated to the safety and sanity of the entire family of man as well as to our own precious freedom.

I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together, not only our government, but civilization itself. That bond, though strained, is unbroken at home and abroad. In all my public and private acts as your President, I expect to follow my instincts of openness and candor with full confidence that honesty is always the best policy in the end.

My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over. Our Constitution works; our great republic is a government of laws and not of men. Here the people rule. But there is a higher power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and of hate.

In the beginning I asked you to pray for me. Before closing I again ask your prayers for Richard Nixon and for his family.

May our former President, who brought peace to millions, find it for himself. May God bless and comfort his wonderful wife and daughters whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House.

I can only guess at those burdens, although I have witnessed at close hand the tragedies that befell three Presidents and the lesser trials of others.

With all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence of my family and friends and dedicated staff impart to me, and with the goodwill of the countless Americans I have encountered in recent visits to 40 states, I now solemnly reaffirm my promise I made to you last December 6: to uphold the Constitution, to do what is right as God gives me to see the right, and to do the very best I can for America.

God helping me, I will not let you down.

Thank you.

Ford family takes on roll as first family

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Betty Ford, Thursday was a day of waiting for word that her husband would become president of the United States. She canceled a doctor's appointment and spent the day secluding in the Fords' home in suburban Alexandria, Va.

Only once during the rainy afternoon did she appear outside, stylishly dressed in a green print silk outfit and her reddish hair carefully coiffed.

"I feel great," she told reporters as she posed for pictures in front of the Ford house. Asked whether she would be going to the White House, she said with a grin, "I haven't been invited."

She insisted that she had not talked with her husband or his office and had no word whether President Nixon would resign. But preparations obviously were in the air.

The Fords' daughter, 17-year-old Susan, arrived at the house around 11 a.m. When she left an hour later she was accompanied by a Secret Service agent.

Susan will be a senior at a private Maryland boarding school next fall, but she plans to live at the White House with her parents.

Steven, the Fords' 18-year-old son, arrived home around mid-afternoon. He climbed out of his new yellow Jeep and stood across the street from the house in sweaty work clothes after finishing the last day of his summer job: mowing grass on the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Reporters brought him first word that Nixon planned to address the nation that night.

"We don't have any radios at work," young Ford said. "We just mow grass."

Asked how he felt about his father moving into the White House, Steven said, "If that's where his job takes him, I'll go with him."

He said he plans to spend next year working as a cowboy on a Utah cattle ranch. He has been accepted as a freshman at Duke University in Durham, N.C., but he has decided to take a year off.

Not long afterward, word came that Ford's other sons, Michael, 24, a second-year divinity student in Massachusetts, and Jack, 22, a forest ranger,
